τούτῳ γάρ Άρης βόσκεται, φόνῳ βροτῶν κεῖμαι δ' ἐπ' ἀκταῖς, ἄλλοτ' ἐν πόντου σάλῳ, πολλοὶς διαύλοις κυμάτων φορούμενος, ἄκλαυτος ἀταφος·

Here I am rolled and rolled by the stream.
The taste of foam
The moaning of the winds

We burned like lions with Ares in their eyes
But it is only in songs that I envy the winds.
O let them scatter
my heart
among the ruins.
Over the cracked roads,
Through the reeds of the marshes,
Hollow voices blow
And the leaves bow down to other masters.

Ashes the cold,
the silent cast in stone, Lifeless the corpses,
the stench, the horror.

Our eyes are enslaved by the sight of the pyres.
Les corps n'en finissent pas de brûler.
Depart from us or we will leave you
In the raining fire above.

The joys of sleepless nights are awaiting you.
The son of Morn may cry and never reach you.
I have seen the veil,
I have seen the grave,
The rain it came
And silence covers all.

The drop like spears, this hollow chest
These salty eyes that never rest.
They have seen this world,
They have seen the dead,
The night it came
And silence covers all.

O praise the moon
Don't await the dawn
The river's stream, the glimmering sky
I wandered all alone.
O sweet hemlock kiss,
The poisonsea burns
And silence covers all.

I poured into the vial of life the terror of living, the worst poison of all.

The young mocked our weakness.
Le soleil-guerre n'est pas au firmament.

Onde de sang, vent ardent.
Nous pénétrons des forêts de serpents ;
Nos lances – des aspices.
Des nuées sanglantes assombrissent l'horizon.
Nous avançons et à mesure que nous avançons, le sol se dérobe sous nos pas :
la terre grouille de corps.
Une grisante odeur de pourriture hante l'air de ses bois – nulle corruption dans ce parfum, mais la douce amertume de notre échec.

The young mocked our weakness.
Le soleil-guerre n'est pas au firmament.

Les corps n'en finissent pas de brûler.

Ashes the cold, the silent cast in stone
That putrid moisture... and the rotting rain that hushes
Over the living and over the dead
the delusion of thought floating that once ravished them
Je n'aimerais pas mourir sur de tels rivages
That olden piece you sang me by
The river
I can't remember
We had mud in our hair or
Was it the ashes
Blended into the blood flowing from Your open chest
I can't remember
That song
You Sang me by
The river Still the glimmering sky I wandered all alone.

*"Red river, red river, slow flow heat is silence
No will is still as a river Still."*

"Your arms full, and your hair wet, I could not Speak, and my eyes failed, I was neither Living nor dead, and I knew nothing,
Looking into the heart of Light, the silence Oed' und leer das Meer".

Drunk of our blood, a sky's faded.
Onde de sang, vent ardent.
I rolled like the sand
the water unfurled.
We are the everdead, the spark in the air.
Dust and water,
the blood of the harvest.

Vision is all that matters
To a wayward traveller

We were so proud in your pale masquerade
And we were lured by your glimmering shade.
We burn like lions with Ares in their eyes
But it is only in songs that I envy the winds.
O let them scatter my heart among the ruins.
You turn, you shiver
Your skin so pale, your breath so cold
I have been longing for your love,
I have been trying not to loose you.
Come, come, fear not...
The Son of Morn may cry, he will never reach us.
Thus is the promise of the winds.
And aimless on those muddy fields,
we wandered all night.
The columns of ashes from the pyres draw a solemn temple:
We have reached the altar.

ἔσται τι νέον
ἥξει τι μέλος γοερὸν γοεραῖς.
Es muß etwas geschehen sein!

The vision is gone, what is left to see?

A poison for the eye, a cure for the heart
And the end of all faith.

De la source profonde jaillit ce chant mystérieux.

Θυμέ, θύμ' ἀμηχάνοιστι κήδεσιν κυκώμενε, ἀναδευ, δυσμενῶν δ' ἀλέξεν προσβαλῶν ἐναντίον στέγων, ἐνδόκοιστιν ἔχθρῶν πλησίον κατασταθεὶς ἀσφαλέως· καὶ μήτε νικῶν ἀμφάδην ἀγάλλεο, μήτε νικηθεὶς ἐν οἴκῳ καταπεσὼν οὐδόγεο, ἀλλὰ χαροῖσιν τε χαῖρε καὶ κακοῖστιν ἀσχάλα μὴ λίγην γίγνωσκε δ' οἷος ὁυσμὸς ἀνθρώπους ἔχει.

« *Qu'est-ce pour nous, mon cœur, que les nappes de sang Et de braise, et mille meurtres, et les longs cris
De rage, sanglots de tout enfer renversant Tout ordre ; et l'Aquilon encor sur les débris*

Et toute vengeance ? Rien ! ... »

Je n'aimerais pas mourir sur de tels rivages,
Sous des cieux si vides Où ne brûle nulle promesse.

... Soleil-guerre, onde de sang ...

Sunwar, the dead walked into the sand

Watch! the winds are dawning.
March with the streams of awe.
Prince Phobos I tear your wings
Released from the prisons of your grieves,
 I am a front, an army of joy,
 A century of burning.
Forth on this crawling sea,
I kill, I don't forget their shattered lives:
The perished shall pass along my shores,
They can't stand your eyes.

Raining down under the waves of blood
I chaos, I sunwar
Purple grains attached to linen soil
I roll, I drown into the chasms of war

Sunwar the dead
ο νυκτιφόρος ἥλιος· ἥλιος πόλεμος νύξ – μόρος – κτήριο – θάνατος Νῦξ δ' ἔτεκε στυγεόν τε Μόρον καὶ Κῆρα μέλαιναν καὶ Θάνατον
νύξ, ἥλιος, πόλεμος.

In every deep, every ocean,
In every stream, every river
We have sailed our way,
The storm has led us this far.

We slay and slay,
We shatter and scatter
Carnage

Watch! the winds are swirling.
Rest, let the night fall on your eyes.
 – O the night in your dying eyes –
But never long for slumber and mourning.

Raining down under the waves of blood
I chaos, I sunwar
Purple grains attached to linen soil
I roll, I drown into the chasms of war

Sunwar, sunwar, sunwar,
I chaos, I sunwar

πολλὰ γάρ, εύτε πτόλις δαμασθῆ, ἐή, δυστυχῆ τε πρᾶσσει.
ἀλλος δ' ἄλλον ἀγει, φονεύει, τὰ δὲ πυρφορεῖ· καπνῷ χραίνεται πόλισμ' ἄπαν· μαινόμενος δ' ἐπιπνεῖ λαοδάμας μιαίνων ευσέβειαν Ἀρης.

κορκορυγαὶ δ' ἀν' ἄστυ, περὶ δ' ὄρκάνα πυργῶτις, πρὸς ἀνδρὸς δ' ἀνήρ δόρει κλίνεται·

γὰ δ' αἰάζει τὰν ἔγγαιάν ἥβαν La terre n'aime pas le sang. Seule la patrie se repaît du noir torrent que vomissent les poitrines

Amies, que faisons-nous de nos vieilles parures ?

— Elles ceignent d'autres corps

Que les nôtres

aimés et repoussants à la fois,

Car une telle froideur ne sied qu'aux palais des charognes et non à des fronts chéris

Ah ! cette pâleur n'a d'égale que le marbre des temples et même l'ivoire du poignard contrefait mieux la vie que sa pointe a dérobée que ce visage.

Il se moque... n'a-t-il pas toute l'apparence d'un dernier éclat de...

— Vieille folle, c'est un autre souffle qui le fait aller et creuser son sillon : Euros se lève. Allons, maintenant ! Il n'est pas pire ennemi pour les morts.

— N'est-ce pas plutôt cette terre cruelle qui t'arrache les entrailles ?

— Que dis-tu !

ἵτε πρὸς λιμένας σκηνάς τε, φίλαν, τῶν δεσποσύνων πειρασόμεναι μόχθων στερρὰ γὰρ ἀνάγκη.

Hélas ! La cité s'évapore
Le marbre se fait vague, écume

Du ciel

Ondes perdues sous la mer

Éternelle, triste

Vasques tristes

Des noires fontaines

Endeuillées

des eaux du Léthé

Que le sang cesse de sourdre

Ou la fange deviendra marais

Les champs retourneront à la forêt

Et l'eau sera rendue au ciel

Un désert noir entouré de

Sinistres temples

Des troncs, ennemis de la lumière

Une nudité, ennemie de l'ombre

— ... mais l'obsénité plaît aux guerriers

— ... et l'obscurité est le seul refuge des esclaves

As-tu oublié ces terribles mines ? L'obscurité n'est que le tombeau des esclaves.

Les épis suintent et ploient sous le triste joug des vents, des morts, de la servitude.

Le chant de deuil aux endeuillées !

Pénombre éclosse, l'inconstance des coeurs

Hier l'épithalame, aujourd'hui le thrène

La semence de l'œil

Ces larmes

Que les dieux boivent avidement.

Le chant de deuil aux endeuillées !

Allons ! Sous ces cieux fades de promesses, des horizons hallucinés, cette terre nous est désormais étrangère.
Seuls les vents hurlent à nos oreilles : qu'ils soient nos guides et nos maîtres
Laissons là ces yeux fracassés que le sang aveugle.
Le chant de deuil aux endeuillées !

Arbres-vautours, festins de charogne, chaomphalos devant nous : allons !

la cendre enténébre l'aveugle de lumière écarlate dépecée au festin des morts

vautours-géants

oubli transe derniers éclats de nos yeux dispersés fragment de lumière éteinte chaomphalos Allons !

Dying into a dance,
Dismal the tide of woes,
Your eyes still can't see
A wave in the foaming streams Turned loose our praying son.
We dance about a fallen sun.

Hollowed by the pain,
I feel the rage coming in Suffocating waves.

As a wreck in the streams of my bloodied kin's blood,
I dreamt of times saturnine when the festering might Enflamed our hearts to the point where the lacerating
Was a joy...
It was a joy!
And then, when the vision's gone
And death's unformed,
I am torn.

Our eyes are enslaved by the sight of the pyres,
Cast under the yoke of our own death.

Uttermost the drugs that have led us this far:
The eyes, the poison, the vision, the might,
But still we don't probe the silence.

Here I am rolled and rolled by the stream.
The taste of foam,
The moaning of the winds.

The crawling snakes of massacre mesmerize the worn-out.
We gathered the first drop after the bite
And spilled the poison over the earth.
The taste of rain was bitter:
Blood and grey skies entwined.

Les corps n'en finissent pas de brûler.

the cracked roads,
Through the reeds of the marshes, Hollow voices blow
And the leaves bow down to other masters.
